Pacers are not - and should not - play the same game as everyone else!

30th in salary (via Salary Swish)...

Golden State Warriors

Milwaukee Bucks

Boston Celtics

Denver Nuggets

Philadelphia 76ers

New Orleans Pelicans

Minnesota Timberwolves

Los Angeles Lakers

New York Knicks

Toronto Raptors

Dallas Mavericks

Atlanta Hawks

Sacramento Kings

Washington Wizards

Detroit Pistons

Indiana Pacers

Oklahoma City Thunder

$208,274,059 $200,008,612 $186,813,711

$183,584,668

$183,480,483

$180,047,223

$177,890,198

$169,582,264

$168,230,197

$166,559,330 $164,541,868

$162,931,412

$162,433,751

$161,832,304

$161,774,593

$157,271,491

$157,208,822

$155,605,853

$153.016.395

$148,266,949 $143,252,009

$141,064,537

$139,618,311

$137,725,721

$137,086,684

$129,565,782

1st in G-League...

NBA play-in spot!

Where do good players come from?

MLB: Players are promoted through a series of farm teams, and skill development occurs at all levels

EPL: Players are recruited to academies and prepared for promotion within the organization. Player promotion centers around young stars from lower leagues.

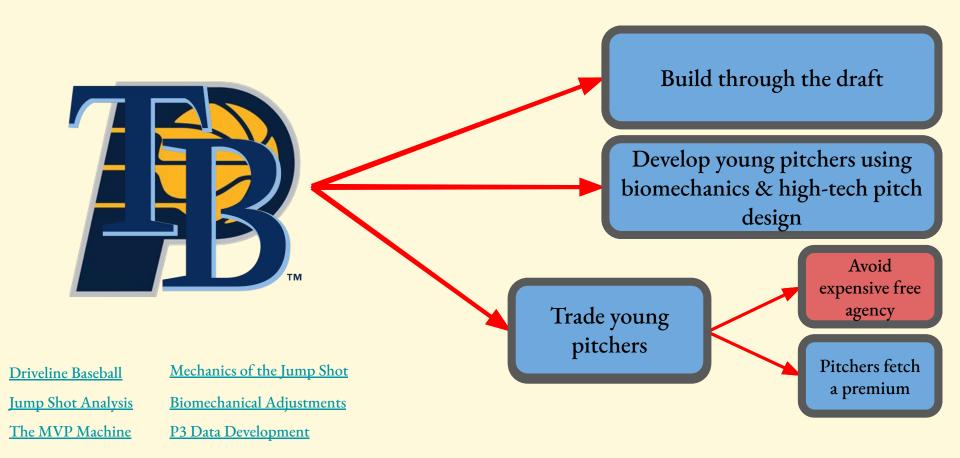

NFL: Players are selected through the draft based on years of college performance. Players are developed through increasing repetitions and game opportunities.

NHL: Players are developed primarily in Junior, Collegiate, and Minor Levels. Player performance is evaluated with league equivalency to demonstrate proficiency.

NBA: Skilled players are acquired through free-agency and lottery draft picks. Top players are expected to instantly fill a role in an NBA squad.

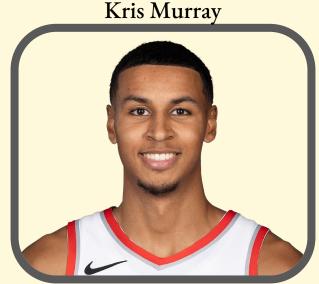

NBA rosters should be built from within, and players should develop in an organization.

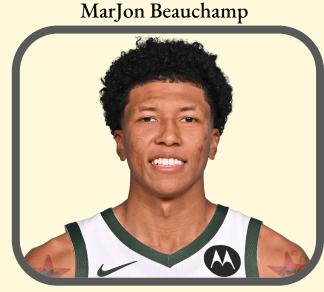

Follow the Tampa Bay Rays Model

Shooting effectiveness

Positional Upgrade

Low on depth chart - DTD w/ injuries

Shooting effectiveness

Fmr. 1st Rounder - More Years of Team Control

Low on depth chart

Source: DARKO

Shooting effectiveness

Fmr. 1st Rounder - More Years of Team Control

Low on depth chart